WRITTEN AGAINST THE LAW AS IT STANDS

The four Labour Codes commenced 21 November 2025. Central rules followed in May 2026. Every document states the position it was written against.

Pack 08 — HR Operations | Ref: P08-00

Eighty-four registers became eight. Thirty-one returns became one.

WHAT THIS PACK DOES

HR operations is the part of the function nobody notices until an inspector asks for a register, someone leaves and nobody can find their file, or a return goes unfiled. This pack covers the machinery: what you must keep, for how long, what you must file and where, and how the HR function itself runs day to day.

THE CHANGE THAT MAKES THIS PACK WORTH BUYING NOW

The Labour Codes consolidated the compliance machinery dramatically. The number of registers an employer must maintain dropped from 84 to 8. The 31 separate returns became a single consolidated electronic return. Registers may now be kept electronically in one combined format, and a single online registration covers all four Codes. That is a genuine simplification — but it only helps you if you have actually moved to the new registers and registered on the portal. Most companies have done neither, and are maintaining old state-format registers that no longer correspond to anything.

Statutory Registers Guide

Pack 08 — HR Operations | Ref: P08-01

What to keep, in which form, for how long, and what you can stop keeping.

HOW TO USE THIS DOCUMENT

Field	Detail
Purpose	Maintain the registers the Labour Codes require, in a permitted format, for the correct period, without duplicating work the Codes no longer ask for.
When to use it	Set up once. Review when rules are notified. Check at every audit.
Who should use it	HR owns the registers. Payroll feeds the wage register. Finance keeps the retention schedule honest.
Output	A complete, current, correctly retained register set.
Time to complete	Half a day to set up, then minutes a month

Step-by-step instructions

1. Start with the three core wage registers — Rule 51 of the Code on Wages (Central) Rules 2026 requires an Employee Register in Form I, a Register of Wages, Overtime, Advances, Fines and Deductions for Damage and Loss in Form IV, and an Attendance Register-cum-Muster Roll in Form IX.
2. Use the deeming provision rather than duplicating — Where you already maintain the Employee Register, the Attendance Register-cum-Muster Roll and the Register of Wages under the Code on Wages Rules, they are deemed to be maintained under the OSH Rules as well. You do not keep two sets.
3. Add the OSH-specific registers — A Register of Accidents and Dangerous Occurrences, and a Register of Leave with Wages.
4. Choose electronic, and say so — Registers may be maintained electronically or physically. Electronic is permitted, is a single combined format, and makes the annual return straightforward.
5. Apply the five-year rule correctly — Preserved for five years after the date of the last entry. It is a rolling period measured from the last entry, not from when the register was opened.
6. Stop maintaining what is no longer required — The consolidation took the count from 84 to 8. Most companies are still keeping legacy state-format registers that no longer correspond to anything. Identify them, close them properly, and retain them for their own retention period rather than destroying them.
7. Check your state — State rules under the Codes continue to be notified. Where your state has prescribed a form or an additional register, that applies on top.
