Pack 09. Background Verification | Ref: P09-00

Verification is easy. Doing it lawfully, and fairly when something comes back wrong, is not.

WHAT THIS PACK DOES

Background verification in India is widely practised and poorly documented. Most employers run checks on a one-line consent buried in the offer letter, keep the results forever, and withdraw offers on the basis of a vendor report the candidate has never seen.

Each of those three habits is a problem. This pack fixes all three without making the process slower.

WHO IS WHO, AND WHY IT DECIDES LIABILITY

Under the Digital Personal Data Protection Act 2023 the candidate is the Data Principal, your organisation is the Data Fiduciary, and any background verification agency you engage is a Data Processor acting on your instructions.

This matters because the obligations sit with you. Appointing an agency moves the work, not the duty. If your vendor over-collects, retains data it should have deleted, or loses it, the Data Principal's complaint is against you. That is why document 05 exists and why you should not engage a BGV vendor on their standard terms alone.

WHEN THIS ACTUALLY BITES

A note on timing. The Digital Personal Data Protection Act 2023 is law, and the DPDP Rules 2025 were notified on 13 November 2025 with an eighteen-month phased rollout. The Board is established in law, sections 18 to 26 having commenced in November 2025, but the provisions that give it teeth do not. Sections 27 and 28, which confer its powers and procedure, and sections 33 and 34, which carry the penalties, all commence on 13 May 2027. So whatever the state of appointments on the day you read this, there is no forum that can adjudicate a complaint against you before that date. As at November 2026 no chairperson or member had been appointed; the recruitment advertisement ran on 6 June 2026 and the Kerala High Court was told on 7 October 2026 that the Board had been constituted but was not yet functional. The Consent Manager framework applies from 13 November 2026, and the substantive obligations on notice, consent, retention, security and data principal rights are due by 13 May 2027. So the duties described here are not all enforceable today. Build to them now anyway: consent you did not take cannot be applied retrospectively to data you have already collected, and the forms you issue this year will still be in circulation when the deadline arrives.

RETENTION STATEMENT. SAY THIS PLAINLY

If you join us, we will delete the verification documents [12] months after your joining date or once your probation is confirmed, whichever is later, and keep only a record that verification was completed.

If you do not join us, we will delete everything within [6] months of the decision.

We will keep this signed consent form for [the duration of your employment plus 3 years], because it is our record that you agreed.

SECTION D. YOUR RIGHTS

- Taking part is your choice. You may refuse, or withdraw your consent at any time, by writing to the contact named above.
- If you withdraw consent, we may be unable to confirm your appointment, because verification is a condition of the offer. We will tell you plainly if that is the position.
- You may ask us what information we hold about you and ask us to correct anything that is wrong.
- If anything comes back that does not match what you told us, we will tell you what it is and give you a reasonable opportunity to explain or correct it before any decision is taken.
- You may raise a concern about how your information has been handled with the contact above.

THE FOURTH BULLET IS THE ONE THAT PROTECTS YOU TOO

Committing in writing to put a discrepancy to the candidate before deciding is not only fair, it is the single most effective protection against withdrawing an offer on the basis of a vendor error. Discrepancies are wrong often enough that this costs you very little and saves you occasionally.

SECTION E. DECLARATION AND SIGNATURE

I confirm that the information I have given in my application and interviews is true and complete to the best of my knowledge.

I have read the checks listed in Section B. I understand which checks will be carried out, who will carry them out, why, who will see the results and how long the information will be kept.

I give my consent to [Company Name] and its appointed verification provider to carry out the checks ticked in Section B, and to the organisations named as sources to release the relevant information for that purpose.
