Pack 04. Employee Engagement | Ref: P04-00

Engagement is measured badly more often than it is measured wrongly. Here is the difference.

WHAT THIS PACK DOES

Engagement is the one HR area where Indian SMEs copy templates from American blogs without noticing that the legal ground underneath is different. The survey questions translate. The data handling does not.

This pack gives you the instruments to measure engagement, act on what you find, and run recognition and wellness without creating liabilities you did not know you were creating. It assumes you have between 10 and 500 employees and no dedicated engagement function.

THE CHANGE MOST COMPANIES HAVE MISSED

This pack treats an engagement survey as falling outside the employment exemption in section 7 of the Digital Personal Data Protection Act 2023, and takes consent for it. That is a deliberate, conservative choice rather than a settled point of law: section 7(i) covers processing for the purposes of employment, which is wide enough that advisers differ on whether a voluntary opinion survey sits inside it. The reasoning is that the exemption comfortably covers administering the employment relationship, payroll and statutory compliance, while a survey asking how people feel about their manager is a step away from that, and consent costs you one screen. Note the contrast with the privacy notice in Pack 02, which warns against asking for consent you do not need: that warning is about routine payroll and enrolment, where the exemption plainly applies. You need consent that is free, specific, informed, unconditional and unambiguous, given by a clear affirmative action, together with a notice saying what you collect, why, who will see it and how long you keep it. Every survey instrument in this pack carries that consent block. Do not remove it.

WHEN THIS ACTUALLY BITES

A note on timing. The Digital Personal Data Protection Act 2023 is law, and the DPDP Rules 2025 were notified on 13 November 2025 with an eighteen-month phased rollout. The Board is established in law, sections 18 to 26 having commenced in November 2025, but no chairperson or member has been appointed and the recruitment advertisement only ran on 6 June 2026. Sections 27 and 28, which give the Board its powers, and sections 33 and 34, which carry the penalties, do not commence until 13 May 2027. So there is no forum that can take a complaint against you today. The Consent Manager framework applies from 13 November 2026, and the substantive obligations on notice, consent, retention, security and data principal rights are due by 13 May 2027. So the duties described here are not all enforceable today. Build to them now anyway: consent you did not take cannot be applied retrospectively to data you have already collected, and the forms you issue this year will still be in circulation when the deadline arrives.

Engagement Survey Kit

Pack 04. Employee Engagement | Ref: P04-02

The annual survey, the consent block that makes it lawful, and the communications around it.

HOW TO USE THIS DOCUMENT

Field	Detail
Purpose	To run an annual engagement survey that produces usable data and complies with the DPDP Act 2023.
When to use it	Once a year, in the same month each year, never alongside appraisals.
Who should use it	The engagement owner named in P04-01.
Output	A completed survey cycle: results published, actions committed.
Time to complete	Two weeks of preparation, two weeks open, three weeks to publish.

Step-by-step instructions

1. Confirm your six drivers. From P04-01. Do not improvise new ones at this stage.
2. Build the questionnaire. Section 2. Use the core set, add from the bank in section 3.
3. Insert the consent block exactly. Section 1. This is the part that makes the survey lawful.
4. Send the pre-launch communication. Section 5, template A. At least five working days before.
5. Open the survey. Two weeks. Send one reminder at day 7 and one at day 11.
6. Close, analyse and publish. Load into P04-08. Publish within 21 days.

1. CONSENT AND PRIVACY NOTICE. USE EXACTLY AS WRITTEN

This block appears on the first screen of the survey, before any question. The respondent must take a clear affirmative action to proceed. A pre-ticked box is not consent under the DPDP Act.

WHEN THIS ACTUALLY BITES

A note on timing. The Digital Personal Data Protection Act 2023 is law, and the DPDP Rules 2025 were notified on 13 November 2025 with an eighteen-month phased rollout. The Board is established in law, sections 18 to 26 having commenced in November 2025, but the provisions that give it teeth do not. Sections 27 and 28, which confer its powers and procedure, and sections 33 and 34, which carry the penalties, all commence on 13 May 2027. So whatever the state of appointments on the day you read this, there is no forum that can adjudicate a complaint against you before that date. As at November 2026 no chairperson or member had been appointed; the recruitment advertisement ran on 6 June 2026 and the Kerala High Court was told on 7 October 2026 that the Board had been constituted but was not yet functional. The Consent Manager framework applies from 13 November 2026, and the substantive obligations on notice, consent, retention, security and data principal rights are due by 13 May 2027. So the duties described here are not all enforceable today. Build to them now anyway: consent you did not take cannot be applied retrospectively to data you have already collected, and the forms you issue this year will still be in circulation when the deadline arrives.

Free-text questions

F1	What is the one thing that would most improve your experience of working here?
F2	What should we definitely keep doing?

Two free-text questions, not six. Comment fatigue sets in fast and the quality of the first answer is always the highest.
